THE MONTH OF OCTOBER HAS ARRIVED!

OCTOBER is more than just a month for pumpkin spice and cozy sweaters; it's also Breast Cancer Awareness Month: a time when we focus on a serious illness that affects many. In October, it's common to wear pink ribbons to show awareness of breast cancer, and as a reminder to take proactive steps to stay healthy. This October, let's take a moment to celebrate the progress we've made, but also to remember that the fight continues. By being informed about screening tools and promoting the power of community, we can truly make a difference in the lives of those affected by breast cancer. You can honor Breast Cancer Awareness Month by checking resources on the National Breast Cancer Foundation to schedule screenings, donate, or support patients.

With 31 days, October is one of the longest months of the year. That's good news given there is an abundance of events and observances going on all month long, starting with Halloween, which falls on Saturday, Oct. 31, this year. Aside from the black-and-orange celebration, there are plenty of other October holidays, commemorations and awareness campaigns to note. Discover an array of food holidays such as National Pasta Day, Pumpkin Spice Day and Sausage Pizza Day.

Before you realize it, the holidays will be upon us... that is Thanksgiving and Christmas.
